Rome, Feb. 28 (AP)—Alfonso XIII, 54-year-old former monarch of Spain, died at 11:50 a. m. (4:40 a. m. E.S.T.) today in the hotel room which had been his home in exile for a decade.

He suffered a series of heart attacks beginning on Feb. 13 and had been sitting in a chair for the last seven days, too weak to be placed in bed. His mind was lucid and he was cheerful until the last.

At his side when he died were his queen, Victoria, from whom he had been estranged for many years; his son and designated heir to the Spanish throne, Don Juan, another son, Don Jaime; a daughter, Beatrice; three doctors; and a Spanish Jesuit priest, Padre Ulpiano Lopez, who administered the last rites of the Catholic Church when death seemed inevitable Feb. 22.

Another daughter, Maria Cristina, was summoned from Turin but was unable to reach Rome. She is expecting a child.

The padre administered the last sacrament of Extreme Unction for a second time this morning. The sacrament was administered last Saturday at Alfonso's own request.

The former king noted members of his family weeping and asked: "Am I so bad?" Then he called for the priest.

The next day, however, he recovered sufficiently to listen by radio to Premier Mussolini's 45-minute address.

Masses Are Arranged
Beginning at midnight tonight masses will be said every half hour in the tiny private chapel of Alfonso's hotel apartment.

The funeral was arranged to be held in the church of St. Mary of the Angels but no date has been decided upon.

Crown Prince Umberto of Italy visited Alfonso's family at the hotel immediately upon learning of the ex-monarch's death, and conveyed the condolences of Italy's king and queen, with whom Alfonso was on terms of close friendship. They visited him last Saturday.

Mussolini sent his condolences to Alfonso and the family through Luigi Russo, undersecretary in the presidency of the council, who called at the hotel.

Pope Pius XII, who had imparted his special blessing to Alfonso before his death, sent Luigi Cardinal Maglione, papal secretary of state, to the hotel to express the pontiff's sympathy to the family.

Prince Juan, heir to the non-existent Spanish throne, served four years in the British navy and speaks English fluently. He married Princess Marie of Bourbon, Sicily in 1935. They have two small children.

Except for an occasional trip to Switzerland Alfonso spent almost his entire life in exile in Rome, where friends said he found the drain on his fortune less heavy than in any other European capital.

He reportedly was required to pay no taxes in Italy, whereas he was unable to get such an exemption elsewhere.

The former monarch died just nine days after the death of his faithful secretary, the Marquis of Torres, who shared his exile.

Was King from Birth
Alfonso was king from his birth. May 17, 1886, and reigned until April 14, 1931—a period marked by turbulence and political unrest which finally broke into civil war in 1936, when Spain was a republic.

Alfonso left Spain April 15, 1931, after signing a manifesto expressing his conclusion that anti-monarchical election results showed he no longer had the love of his people. But in his own estimate he remained king of Spain.

He declared again and again, "I will never abandon my throne." His hope and prediction were that some day he would return.

His final yielding, dated Jan. 15, 1941, was a renunciation of the throne in favor of his third son, Don Juan. This announcement was issued Feb. 13 when he already was under treatment at a Rome hotel for a heart condition.

For days Alfonso's condition was "slightly improved." On Thursday night he took a definite turn for the worse.

Personal courage, made plain when numerous attempts were made to assassinate him, plus unyielding insistence on his royal prerogative, marked Alfonso XIII (Continued on Page Seven)

Strikers Accept Defense Formula To End Walkout

Lackawanna Steel Plant
Will Resume Operations;
A. F. L. Dispute Ends
at Philadelphia

(By The Associated Press)

The strike at Bethlehem Steel's Lackawanna, N. Y., plant ended today with the C.I.O.'s acceptance of a formula drafted by the defense commission in its anxious efforts to keep production flowing.

Government officials, cheered over this, also found pleasure in the settlement of a smaller strike, by the A.F.L., at the National Supply Company in Philadelphia. A representative of the company, which makes Diesel engines for the navy, said "substantial wage increases" were granted.

President Roosevelt told a press conference today that all kinds of proposals for mediation of defense industry disputes with labor were under study, but whether any of them would be adopted remained to be seen.

He made this observation when asked about reports that Secretary Perkins was working with the office of production management on some special mediation arrangement.

He said he did not know what, if anything, would be done beyond what is being done now. He recalled that in the first World War there were various sets of machinery created, but anything along those lines for the present situation was entirely in the study stage.

No Part of Agreement
He told a questioner that he had nothing to do with the agreement to settle the Bethlehem strike.

William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, co-directors of the office of production management, worked late last night at Washington drawing up the plan which they hoped would start production rolling again at full volume in the big steel mill.

They proposed first that all employees be reinstated fully; that the management and the steel workers organizing committee confer in an effort to adjust grievances, and that the office of production management be set up.

Senator Has Grim View Of Aid Bill

Montanan Again Takes Up Battle Against
Act, Flings Barbs

Ignores F. D. R.

Senator Refuses to Take
F. D. R.'s Statement on Passage

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—Montana's Burton K. Wheeler, implacable foe of the British Aid Bill since the day of its introduction, denounced it unsparingly today as legislation which would "strip us of our defenses, invite the chief executive to declare war, and create a dictatorship."

It was a hammer-and-tongs attack, with barbed flings at the President, at Wendell L. Willkie, "international bankers," "court satellites," and "nameless ghost-writers" whom he aligned behind the bill.

Senator Wheeler, a Democrat, omitted any reference to President Roosevelt's assertion of last night that the administration "confidently" anticipated early enactment of the lend-lease program as an "all important factor" in hemisphere defense.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a radio broadcast to the Motion Picture Awards dinner at Hollywood, declared that the United States' defense "involves the defense of all the democracies of all the Americas—and therefore in fact, it involves the future of democracy wherever it is imperiled by force or terror."

Wheeler, in the four-hour address he prepared for the Senate floor, sharply disputed claims that the bill would help further the interests of national defense, and proclaimed anew that he would battle it to the last, regardless.

The opposition, he insisted, was speaking "for the overwhelming majority of Americans," who demanded to be told "whether the forgotten man of 1932 is destined to be the unknown soldier of 1942."

'Tragic Joke'
Should the bill become law, said he, the constitutional power of Congress to make war would be made a "tragic joke."

As the Montanan analyzed the legislation, it would empower the President to aid any country he wished, even Latin American nations in their continental controversies, "or in their internal revolutions."

Nor was that all. He contended the President would have authority to do any of these things: "Attempt to set up an NRA of the universe, or a world-wide super-barter system, taking over the surplus farm products of South America."

"Seize German, Italian or Japanese merchant ships in our harbors," "Send American merchant vessels to belligerent ports in violation of the neutrality act," "Use American naval vessels for convey of either belligerent or American merchant ships."

Tells of Communications
Wheeler said "the overwhelming majority" of communications he had received from the public were against the bill. The minority favoring it, he continued, revealed that they did so because they did not understand the measure. They had been lulled by "soothing assurances" from their leaders that the bill will keep us out of war.

Here he quoted scripture with caustic irony, but without mentioning names:

Insurance Measure Would Register, Examine Concerns

Summer T. Pike Proposes Act to Monopoly Groups for Firms; Doesn't
Ask Interference

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—Compulsory federal registration of life insurance companies doing interstate business was proposed to the monopoly committee today by Summer T. Pike, the securities commissions' representative on the committee.

He also recommended that such companies be required to submit to federal examination.

Pike asserted that these, together with other recommendations offered by himself and Gerhard A. Gesell, who conducted a study of life insurance for the monopoly committee, would provide "some slight supervision over certain primarily interstate aspects" of life insurance. The business already is subject to regulation by the states.

At the same time, Pike declared that "the federal government should not supplant the states, nor should it interfere with their regulatory processes."

"We do not recommend or suggest any form of strict, all-inclusive federal regulations," he said. "On the contrary, the entire purpose of our proposals is to demonstrate that such regulation can be avoided by strengthening the existing state regulatory machinery."

May Lead to Decay
Pike declared, however, that "if some steps are not taken now to plug the gaps where state regulation cannot do an effective job or where standards may become unduly relaxed, the weaknesses in the existing state regulatory system may lead to its eventual decay and public clamor will then arise for an all-inclusive federal regulatory system."

Pike also suggested that the government encourage "the gradual disappearance and eventual elimination of industrial insurance" through a system of lump sum death benefits under the social security system or by providing government insurance of a similar type through postal facilities.

He described industrial insurance as the type "sold in small amounts primarily to persons of little means" and under which premiums are paid weekly or monthly to collectors who call at the homes of the insured.

Liberalization Suggested
The states, Pike contended, should consider liberalizing their investment laws to permit life insurance companies to invest a portion of their funds in common stocks.

State action also was asked to abolish what Pike termed "clandestine conferences" among life insurance companies to fix rates through inter-company "gentlemen's agreements."

Pike recommended that the state also assist policyholders to a cost of $1,387,500.

Three Groups Start Investigations of Airliner's Wreck

Atlanta, Feb. 28 (AP)—Three independent groups arranged today to investigate the crash near here of Eastern Air Lines' almost-new, $120,000 air sleeper, which killed seven persons and injured nine, including Eddie Rickenbacker, famed World War pilot and president of the company.

The big ship, enroute from New York, smashed into a pine woodland about midnight Wednesday as it swung several miles from the airport to come in for a landing.

Rickenbacker, who was last to be pulled from the wreckage when searchers found it at dawn yesterday, was reported "some better" early today by Piedmont Hospital attendants. He suffered a re-break of an old hip injury received in his auto racing days.

Rickenbacker's physician gave him "better than an even chance" to recover.

Upon reaching the hospital, Rickenbacker said cheerfully, "tell the boys I'll be in three or four weeks." His wife drove from Charlotte, N. C., to be at his bedside.

Serious Condition
H. A. Littlefield, assistant managing editor of the New York Times, and C. M. Tappen, New York city oil company executive suffering from a fractured vertebrae, remained in a serious condition at a hospital.

The Civil Aeronautics Board began immediately a preliminary investigation, but inspectors said it would take two or three days to dismantle the motors and check other parts of the wreckage.

Grant Mason, Jr., board member, and air safety bureau director Jerome Lederer planned a public hearing in Atlanta next week.

Senator Clark (D-Mo.), head of a special Senate committee to investigate plane accidents, announced in Washington that his committee would conduct an inquiry next week.

Eastern Air Lines also began a study of the crash.

Those killed were Rep. William D. Byron (D-Md.) of Williamsport, Md., enroute to New Orleans to join his wife for a vacation trip to Mexico; pilot James J. Perry, co-pilot L. E. Thomas, steward Clarence Moore, all of New York; A. Liebowitz, Atlanta; Juan Maria, San Salvador, Central America; and B. C. M. Van Der Hopp of Scarsdale, N. Y.

Four injured, including Mrs. Littlefield, editor of Parents' magazine, are recovering in Atlanta hospitals. Two were released from hospitals after treatment for minor injuries.

Dutch East Indies To Have 3,000-Mile Chain of Defenses

Chief of The Netherlands
Forces Says New Units of Land Forces Being Organized Now

Headquarters of the Netherlands East Indies Army, Bandung, Feb. 28 (AP)—Lieut.-Gen. G. J. Berenschot, commander-in-chief of the Netherlands East Indies army, disclosed today a hitherto unknown military expansion program designed to create a 3,000-mile chain of fortresses along the Equator in these rich islands.

In an interview, the general said that the rate of increase in his land forces is mainly a question of obtaining equipment for "new army units which are being organized and commissioned as rapidly as equipment arrives."

"The manpower is available now but material is coming slowly," he said.

Figures cannot be disclosed but the commander said that an army "many times the former size" is being formed.

Berenschot described a new defense system whereby infantry units will be stationed in outer islands to protect auxiliary naval bases there. Formerly it was believed the N.E.I. army would make a concerted stand only in Java and Sumatra if attacked.

The new program scraps that plan, enlarging the defensibility of each larger island from Borneo to New Guinea.

"We never intended to surrender any islands however distant," Berenschot said, "but actual defense formerly was impossible with the forces available. The new system provides adequate protection of the outer territories."

"Greater land strength there in turn will raise the efficiency of airplane and submarine forces which otherwise might be forced to withdraw."

British Can Maintain Present Food
Rations Against Sea Warfare Cuts

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—Great Britain can maintain present rations of essential foods, the agriculture department said today, even if sea warfare slashes imports to 40 per cent of average pre-war levels for fats and 30 per cent for bacon and ham and sugar.

These estimates were based upon the assumption of no startling shifts in domestic production and discount the influence of changes in reserve stocks.

The department's survey found Britain faring better than Germany in essential foods, but said the war had boosted prices there but not in the Reich.

Reporting on the British rationing system, the department said that in the first war year imports of food far exceeded the levels believed necessary to maintain present rations. This was

(By The Associated Press)

German troops in battle uniform were reported moving through Bucharest today, while extreme nervousness prevailed in Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, that Adolf Hitler may be about to start his long-expected march into southeast Europe.

Telephone communication with Sofia was cut off for 23 hours until a single line was opened to Belgrade, Yugoslav capital, tonight. Police cordoned the Bulgarian city, making it impossible for anyone to leave.

Sofia reported it still was impossible to communicate with Bulgarian provinces to ascertain what was happening along the Danube. An estimated 200,000 Nazi troops have been reported massed on the Rumanian side of the river.

In the Far East crisis, France ignored the deadline on Japan's ultimatum demanding that French Indo-China yield great territorial stretches to Thailand or risk "forceful action" by Japan.

The hour of midnight passed in Tokyo (10 a. m. E. S. T.), with lights burning in the Japanese foreign office and officials gravely awaiting this first test of Japanese leadership in the East Asia sphere which the Axis has allotted her.

But no reply came, and the Japanese summoned an extraordinary conference for Saturday morning at which French Indo-China representatives will be asked to explain the lack of an answer to this "final mediation proposal" by Japan.

As part of her devious moves southward, Japan chose to step in and mediate the sporadic border war in the jungles of western Indo-China between the French and invading Thais. Observers feel she expects to win military and economic advantages from both countries as her "reward."

There were new hints, from Europe, of the imminence of a German smash at England. Unconfirmed reports from Vichy today said Germany was removing the French population from the English Channel coast, clearing a 22-mile strip, and some quarters declared it indicated final preparation for an attempt to invade the British Isles.

These reports said the removals began in mid-February. It was considered possible that the long-heralded thrust across the channel might coincide with the opening of a vast new German U-boat offensive, which Adolf Hitler declared would be unleashed in March.

The Germans said Nazi warplanes were already taking a heavy toll of British shipping, sinking or damaging 28 vessels totaling 146,000 tons in the past two days.

"It will be a little more lively next week," Nazi quarters in Berlin declared.

In addition to the aerial toll, the German high command said 22,000 tons had been sent to the bottom by a Nazi submarine.

Unconfirmed reports from Saigon, winter capital of Indo-China, said Japan had massed 51 warships in the Gulf of Siam and off southern Indo-China.

Apparently determined to fight, if necessary, French troops and supplies moved to strategic points. Dispatches from Vichy, and Saigon, Indo-China, indicated the French would refuse to accept the settlement—said to entail transfers of large slices of Indo-China territory to Thailand—and military preparations for defense of the rich Asiatic colony were reported under way.

Significantly, Japan took steps to remove her nationals from Indo-China.

Two hundred Japanese in Saigon were ready to board a Japanese cruiser at a moment's notice and several Japanese families residing at Phnompenh, in Cambodia province, also arrived at Saigon prepared to leave. Hundreds of Chinese left Saigon on small ships.

A Japanese cabinet spokesman said the Japanese-fixed truce between Thailand and Indo-China would run until it stated expiration time, noon March 7, but Japan made it clear that she intended to step forcefully into the picture if France rejected her ultimatum.

A Singapore report by the British News Agency, Reuters, said the eastern approaches to Singapore harbor and the roads would be closed to shipping by mines after March 3, indicating that existing minefields around the great

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Morale is vital in any fighting force. Volumes have been written about it. There's no military man worth his salt who doesn't think about it constantly.

A great many civilians have a confused idea about morale. Many think it is the army's concern with morals. Morals are only a phase of it.

One definition that I got of morale:

That mental quality and firmness which, in a body of troops, continues to function after everything else has broken . . . a quality which presses on to its goal in the face of the most discouraging circumstances and refuses to recognize that anything save success can result from correct efforts.

In combat service, it is a quality which will survive disaster and sustain the mass or the individual to "take it" again and again until an opponent of lesser morale yields.

Almost Everything
So you see, morale is almost everything and is affected by almost everything. If a soldier feels that the army is dishing out slum instead of a satisfying and appetizing meal; if his uniform doesn't fit and isn't something he can take pride in; if he feels the rifle he carries, the machine gun he mans, the plane he flies isn't just as good as the other fellow's, then he may not be worth a hoot when the attack comes.

These contributing factors are basic, so much so that we don't need to consider them here. What we can consider is that, sifting the lessons, particularly of the first World War, the military powers that be now have launched on a morale program the like of which the American army and navy never dreamed of.

In the first place, Congress appropriated about $3,700,000 for that alone. In the second, the army set up, under direction of the adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Emory S. Adams, its new morale division. This division acts almost entirely in an advisory capacity and as a clearing house, because the responsibility for the morale of the men in each camp rests solely with the commanding officer. In the last analysis, it is his problem and his success or failure, but it is up to the morale division to help in every way possible.

Nine Sections
Probably the best way to explain it is to list the nine sections which make up the division—and their duties, as follows:

1. Administrative section—General supervision of the whole program.

2. Welfare section—Liaison with civilian welfare agencies, civilian communities and the Red Cross. Operation and maintenance of guest houses on the posts, the service clubs (with their hostesses) and all matters pertaining to

Health Agencies Affiliated With Catholic Charity

Despite the fact that the health agencies affiliated with New York Catholic Charities now include 26 general hospitals, five orders of nursing sisters, and four convalescent homes, the number is small in comparison with the needs. This is revealed in the annual health division report of the organization submitted to Archbishop Francis J. Spellman by Monsignor Robert F. Keegan, secretary to the archbishop for charities.

According to this report, made by the Rev. John J. Bingham, director of the division, more than $2,900,000 is to be spent during the coming year for new construction and extension of existing facilities to hospitals. Last year the hospitals gave 1,451,402 days of care to 67,458 patients and free care amounted to 300,706 days. In addition to this the clinic departments maintained by eight of the general hospitals reported 228,631

Ginger Rogers, James Stewart Are Voted Best Film Actors

Miss Rogers' Portrayal of
'Kitty Foyle,' Stewart
in 'Philadelphia Story'
Atop All Others

Hollywood, Feb. 28 (AP)—Ginger Rogers and James Stewart stood above the movie horizon today, selected as the year's best actors in the annual poll of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Ginger was better than any of her acting sisters in 1940, her fellows believe, because of her portrayal in "Kitty Foyle."

And Stewart impressed them by his work in "The Philadelphia Story."

They, as well as a score of others, were called to the podium of a banquet hall jammed with celebrities and fellow workers last night to be handed statuettes a foot high.

"Rebecca" was the year's best motion picture, in the opinion of the academy's 12,000 voters.

The award for the best performance by a supporting actor went to Walter Brennan as Judge Bean in "The Westerner." It was old stuff for him—he won in 1936 for "Come and Get It" and in 1938 for "Kentucky."

Best Supporting Actress

Jane Darwell was voted the best supporting actress for her characterization of Ma Joad in "The Grapes of Wrath."

The director of "The Grapes," John Ford, won the directorial award. He won in 1935 for "The Informer."

The 13th annual award party was highlighted by a radio address by President Roosevelt from the White House. He told the industry he wanted to place emphasis "on the service you can render in promoting solidarity among all the peoples of America" and expressed gratitude for support of the defense program.

Miss Rogers, a song and dance girl during her early movie days, has taken slow but certain steps toward the historic heights she reached in "Kitty Foyle." She is known as one of the hardest workers in town. Her real name is Virginia McMath and she was born in Independence, Mo., 30 years ago next July.

One Small Role Did It

Under contract for months to M.G.M. Studio, Stewart wandered around the lot hoping he'd impress some director. He impressed them—but not in the right way.

They thought he was too lanky, that his face was too long, that his lower lip was too prominent. But in one small role he clicked and his personality has been registering since.

The red-haired and vivacious Ginger was competing against some of the movie's best talent, including Bette Davis, who has won two awards, and Katharine Hepburn, a one-time winner. Bette was nominated for "The Letter" and Hepburn for "The Philadelphia Story." Also named were Martha Scott for "Our Town" and Joan Fontaine for "Rebecca."

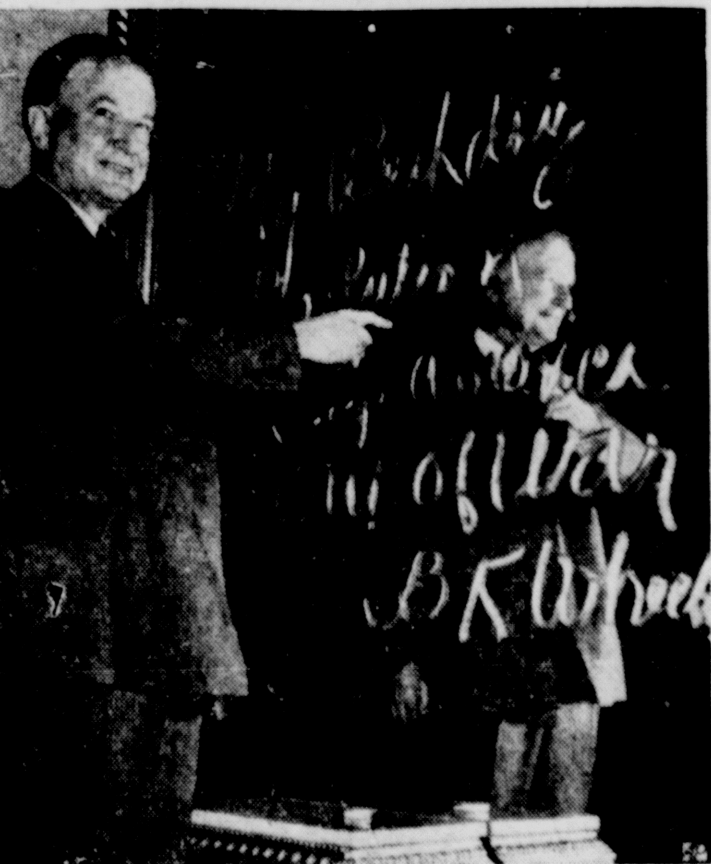

Stewart's competitors were Charlie Chaplin, "The Great Dictator," Raymond Massey, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," Henry Fonda, "The Grapes of Wrath," and Laurence Olivier, "Rebecca."

Kingston Kiwanis Sees Central Hudson Movie

A most interesting and instructive moving picture, shown by Ronald Dickson of the Poughkeepsie office of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., through the courtesy of E. M. Huben of the company's Kingston office, who was announced as the "Dictator of Rosendale," pleased members of Kingston Kiwanis at the weekly luncheon meeting Thursday noon.

In addition to local scenes, including pictures at the hydro-electric plant at Sturgeon Pool, the film depicted various plants, power stations and plant equipment of the company throughout its territory, including linemen at work, handling of emergency situations and the like. There were other scenes showing electricity being used for all kinds of household purposes and for numerous commercial operations.

WHEELER'S BIRTHDAY RESOLUTION

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler (D-Mont.), foe of the administration's British aid bill, celebrated his 59th birthday (Thursday) by writing a message in soap in a senate cloak room mirror. With a smile he points to the message, which reads, "My birthday resolution. Keep America out of war. B. K. Wheeler."

In fact the film traced the electric power and light industry from the water, or steam power that activated the huge generators through all the phases till the current was put to use in home or factory. Leaving the generating station, the 66,000-volt current is sent over high-tension wires to disturbing stations, where it is cut down to 4600 volts, the amount carried on wires running along streets and roads and then, before it is taken into homes it is again cut down by transformers to a small fraction of that amount.

The accompanying lecture stated that as late as 1926 kerosene was still the source of light in most rural districts, but that today in 98 per cent of homes and factories electricity is available. To accomplish this result as much as 381 miles of line have been stretched in one year.

Visitors at the luncheon Thursday included Harry Goldsworthy, Robert C. Murray, Kingston; Donald L. Bishop, West Shokan; Norman T. Boggs, Woodstock; Kellogg Peckham, Yellow Springs, O.; Arnold Holmsen, Bridgeport, Conn.

Refreshment car special trains are now run in London subways.

An entertainment was given under the direction of Noble Grand Nettie Lasher and Helen Otto, and the following members represented the months of the year: January, Mable Bode; February, Elsie Shipman; March, Edna Cole; April, Helen Otto; May, Florence Elliott; June, Grace Barryan; July, Maggie Myers; August, Mary Schrader; September, Loudeski;

March Wind Comes Two Days Early; Mercury Is Down

With a temperature of 15 degrees above zero reported in Kingston at 6:30 o'clock this morning by the official city thermometer the city was still in the grip of the cold wave that broke here on Thursday, following several days of mild temperatures.

The lowest point recorded by the official city thermometer on Thursday morning was 12 degrees, while the highest point reached that afternoon was 33 degrees.

This morning while according to the city thermometer it was three degrees warmer seemed much colder than yesterday as a chill, biting wind swept through the city during the morning hours.

The sky was also overcast and indications were that snow would fall here during the day.

Only an inch of snow had fallen in the city during February, according to the records in the city engineer's office, while there had been a precipitation of 2.68 inches of rain during the month.

The city engineer's records show that the coldest day this month was on February 5 when a low of 5 degrees above zero was recorded. The highest temperature recorded this month was on February 7 when 43 degrees was reported. There were also several days when a reading of 42 degrees was recorded in the city.

Valuable Model Stolen

Los Angeles, Feb. 28 (AP).—Officials of Manta Aircraft Corp. disclosed the theft Monday from their plant of a model airplane representing new ideas in army fighter plane design. David R. Davis, president, said the six-foot model's value, $10,000, was incidental to its importance in the national defense program. He said the model had been approved by army aviation experts, and that the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the army intelligence service were investigating the theft.

Hathmaker Named Head Of Real Estate Group

John A. Hathmaker of 371 Albany avenue was re-elected president of the Ulster County Real Estate Board at the annual meeting held Thursday evening at Feye's Restaurant on Wall street. Other officers elected were: Frank S. Hyatt, vice president; James E. Sneed, secretary, and Arthur J. Burns, treasurer.

Optimism for a better real estate market in 1941 was expressed by all of the brokers present, and sales already made in January and February indicate that now is the time to buy real estate.

Brokers that evening said that many desirable properties can be bought now at prices less than half their reproduction cost.

The board went on record as opposed to the diversion of the $60,000,000 from the railroad crossing elimination bond issue of $300,000,000, and instructed the secretary to so notify the legislative representatives in Albany.

Peter J. Halloran of this city and Charles Partonoff of Stony Ridge were accepted as members of the Ulster County Real Estate Board at the meeting.

Elks Are Holding Essay Contest; 1st Prize Is $1,000

In the promotion of national patriotism an essay contest, open to students of high school age, is being conducted by the Elks National Defense Commission with prizes amounting to $1,000, $500 and $250 being awarded in the national contest and prizes of $15, $10 and $5 being awarded by Kingston Lodge for the best local essay. The contest closes March 31.

Exalted Ruler Sydney Flisser of Kingston Lodge, announced today that the local defense committee appointed by him consisting of William F. Edelmuth, chairman; Edward Wortman, Vincent G. Connelly, Harry Kaplan and John Weaver in cooperation with Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman and local school authorities, is distributing the poster cards and rules governing the contest.

This patriotic essay contest is unique in that it calls for an analysis of the painting of Uncle Sam in addition to writing a 300 to 500-word essay on "What Uncle Sam Means to Me." The painting is a composite picture of Uncle Sam by the well known artist C. C. Beall. It was recently presented to President Roosevelt by members of the Commission and will be used by the War Department as a national defense poster. At a distance of 10 feet, it is a remarkable portrait of Uncle Sam and held close it becomes a group of individual people and things which go to make up the important elements in our national defense.

Mayor Heiselman has recommended a jury of three, consisting of B. C. Van Ingen, former superintendent of schools, Rabbi Bloom and Col. Frank L. Meagher, principal of the M. J. M. school, who will select the three best essays at the end of the contest which closes March 31. The local prizes will be $15 for first essay, $10 for the next best and $5 for third prize and contestants are also eligible for the big national prizes. Rules of the contest may be secured by high school students from their school principal and from members of the Elks Defense Committee or from Secretary William Edelmuth at the Elks Home, 264 Fair street. Local merchants will also display the Uncle Sam poster in their windows and rules of the contest are printed on the back of the poster cards.

Draft in County Sets Next Quota Of 49 for March

Between March 17 and 26, the four draft boards of Ulster county will be called upon to furnish quotas totaling 49 men for the new federal army, according to word received by the boards from Albany.

Kingston is called on to furnish 16 men of which number three are colored; Saugerties will furnish nine white men; Kerhonkson 10 white and one colored, and New Paltz 11 white and two colored men.

Monday, March 3, Kingston is planning to send a quota of 21 men for induction into the service. At the local draft board today it was stated that the list was not ready to be released for publication.

Yesterday the local draft board mailed questionnaires to registrants holding order numbers 810 to 859 inclusive. These questionnaires have to be filled in and returned to the board within five days.

Strikers Accept Defense Formula To End Walkout

production management "explore" with the labor relations board the possibility of holding an election to determine a collective bargaining agent at the Lackawanna plant.

Within a few hours after the strike was called Wednesday night there was violence along the two-mile picket line as some non-striking night shift employees attempted to enter the plant.

Tensity of the situation increased last night. Police officials increased their guard after a melee in which a patrolman was injured. Edward F. Entwistle, general manager of the mill, announced he had telegraphed Governor Lehman for state police to "suppress continued disorders."

Effectiveness of the walkout was disputed. Entwistle contended that most departments in the plant operated yesterday, some of the more important ones at 100 per cent capacity. Union officials claimed almost full effectiveness for strike.

The union had asked for a collective bargaining election, an immediate conference to settle grievances, and reinstatement of workers who had been "indefinitely suspended" by the company. An earlier demand was for a 25 per cent wage boost. S.W.O.C. officials hinted broadly that the strikes might spread to other plants in Bethlehem's wide-flung system. The company has more than $1,500,000,000 in defense orders on its books.

The Knudsen-Hillman peace proposal advanced two suggestions which the union had advocated—reinstatement of employees and a conference to adjust differences.

Hillman said he and Knudsen were interested primarily in getting the men back to work as soon as possible, "and keeping them at work."

"In cases of other disputes we hope we can make the adjustment before and not after work is stopped," he said.

Insurance Measure Would Register, Examine Concerns

"participate more directly in the management of their companies." He suggested as one method of appointment by state governors of public directors to membership on the boards of life insurance companies.

"Nothing," Pike said, "should of course be done in this field which would enable irresponsible groups acting from improper motives to seize control of life insurance companies."

Besides the recommendations with respect to life insurance, Pike proposed that congress or some federal agency be directed to conduct "a thorough investigation of all forms of fire, casualty and marine insurance."

Choir Mothers Meet

The Choir Mothers of the First Dutch Church met at the Church House on Wednesday evening for their monthly meeting. Following the devotional subject, "Family Worship," led by Miss Lucille Cutler, Mrs. E. V. K. Schutt, the president, opened the business meeting with the definition of the aims of the Choir Mothers as follows: To promote the spiritual welfare of the children, to attend church, to give publicity to the program of the church, to attend meetings and to support the church financially. Mrs. Arthur Laidlaw was elected treasurer of the group, the office of secretary-treasurer thus being divided. At the close of the evening refreshments were served by a committee composed of the officers: Mrs. E. V. K. Schutt, Mrs. Bert Gildersleeve, Mrs. Henry Page, Mrs. F. P. Merritt and Mrs. Walter Danford.

Rabies Reported In Second State Laboratory Test

Another rabid dog was reported in Kingston today when Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, received a report from the state laboratory in Albany that the final tests made by the laboratory showed that the dog, which died on Howland avenue earlier in the month, was rabid.

This makes the second dog that has died of rabies so far this month in Kingston.

The first case was that of a dog owned on Hurley avenue which died of the rabies. A few days later another dog died on Howland avenue.

The heads of both dogs were sent to Albany for laboratory tests and the head of the Hurley avenue dog showed that it had died of rabies.

The preliminary report received on the Howland avenue dog was negative, but the final test just received today shows a positive case of rabies.

Several days ago another dog that had been under quarantine in the city pound at the City Home farm died and the head was sent to Albany. As yet no report has been received on that dog.

Teacher—Johnny, what are the middle ages?
Johnny—They used to be 35 to 50; now they're 50 to 70.

In spring the flowers are white and red. In fall they are yellow, suggestive of the gold the season should have brought to us, whether it did or not.

Friend—Where have you been these last few years?
Man—At the university, taking medicine.

Friend—And did you finally get well?
Man—Consider a poor columnist—sitting before his battered typewriter with a sheet of white paper that looks bigger and whiter than a snow scene in Siberia. The dead-line is drawing near. There is a gaping "hole" on the page where column usually appears. The lino-type man is yelling for copy and the makeup man is bellowing for type. Mrs. Lovelady calls to say that her son went to the football game too and didn't get his name in the paper. A badly frayed looking gentleman drops in to say he is an old printer and is in need of the price of a meal and a place to sleep. The ad man imparts the cheerful information that Mr. Merchant has sent in a double column mat for his single column ad and says out the space down half. All a columnist needs is a little quiet and a few ideas. It's a cinch.

To avoid mistakes and regrets, always consult your wife before engaging in a flirtation.

Harold—Where are you going, mother?
Mother—To a surprise party.

Harold—Can't I go too—and can't we take Bobby and Susie along?
Mother—No, you weren't invited.

Harold—Well, don't you think they'd be lots more surprised if you took us?

Just between us boys, old and young, the world is somewhat more beautiful because the women are so particular about beautifying themselves.

Friend—Why don't you give your new bungalow a name? something appropriate like "Walk Inn," "Cozy Inn," or "Seldom Inn?"

Man—That's an idea. As I've just finished paying for it, I'll name it "All Inn."

If we had not wasted so much money in peace we would be in better financial condition to get ready for war.

Add to your list of better drunk stories the one now making the rounds of the town. It concerns the inebriated gentleman who staggered into the telegraph office and told the clerk he wanted to send a wire to George.

"George Who?" asked the clerk.
"To George, that all," muttered the drunk. "Just good ol' George."

The clerk decided the only thing to do with the chap was humor him. So he said: "All right. What do you want to say?"

"Just say tra la, tra la, tra la, tra la," replied the lush.

"But that's only eight words," pointed out the clerk. "Don't you want to add another tra la and make it the usual 10-word message?"

"No," exclaimed the tipsy one. "I think that would be very silly."

Putting off writing letters is very common frailty. Most of the time the letters we failed to write wouldn't have amounted to anything if we had sent them promptly. But we keep worrying about it when we don't write, just the same.

The trouble about the spoken word is that in time there may arise doubt as to what it was and as to what it meant. It is better to set into writing anything about which there might be a disagreement.

Consider the difference between "everybody's sweetheart" and "anybody's sweetheart."

One way to keep people's respect is never to ask them to lend you money, unless they are in the lending business—and then making prompt repayment at the time appointed.

ALONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIEN GREY

YESTERDAY: Roger Cosgrave's love for Lovely Daye has borne bitter fruit. Roger had forced Emily Perry to break their engagement, and now Emily's mother and father have driven their old car into the ocean, to death. And in Mexico, on their honeymoon, Lovely's great beauty has led a young Mexican to tragedy. Home again on the Cosgrave estate, Lovely and Roger are awakened by a gang from Lovely's old neighborhood in New York—not a very good neighborhood.

Chapter 21

Marcia Takes It Well

HERE'S the big shot. The boy friend in other words! Lovely introduced them. "Roger, these are the kids I played around with in town. You've met Katie and Bill and Joe. Call the others—" but their voices drowned Lovely's.

"When it's time to eat!" Katie, little and dark, like a rosebud with its petals still tightly closed, stood beside Roger.

"I tried to keep them from coming," she said in her sweet voice. "But they would. You know how people are when they get out at night, half in the bag."

"I know. And I'm glad to see you," Roger was glad to see Katie again and he reminded that Lovely's closest friend before her marriage had been such a thoroughly nice girl. Sweet, sincere, sensible.

"I think Joe was the one really started it," Katie said. "He had to see Lovely, I guess. See how it is with her. Torture himself with how happy she looks."

It was almost as if she were warning Roger, telling him that Joe had not forgotten the beauty and lure of Lovely.

Marcia appeared then. She had put on soft blue corduroy slacks and a sweater and was on her way to the kitchen to get food for the unexpected party. Her mood, as she faced the young people, was light and smooth as a rose petal.

"Our mother, brats!" Lovely said as she put her arm around the smaller and more delicate woman. "Isn't she a swell sport coming down to meet you lugs?"

"Hi-yah, mom!" someone yelled. "Hi-yah! Hi-yah! Hi-yah! Lovely's mom!" They all joined in the cheer and Marcia waved her hand appreciatively at them. Katie, still standing close, was examining Marcia with approval. She turned to Roger.

"Your mother's lovely," she said.

Roger's "Thank you, Katie," was almost drowned out by the song that started spontaneously. Faster and faster, louder and louder the voices until they reached the last line.

Marcia laughed and hurried toward the back of the house. It had been a long time since she had done anything in the big kitchen with its ample equipment. But she wouldn't disturb any of the help. It would be fun to do things herself.

She was busily at work when Kar poked his head down the back stairs.

"What's the rumspus?" he called.

"Lovely's friends," she went on slicing the roast left from dinner. "Well," Kar said slowly, "seems we're to know we've got a daughter in the house."

"Darling, make coffee," Marcia turned to him laughing. "That is if you haven't forgotten how! Or did you ever know, my pet? No—the big camp pot. We'll need lots. It sounds as if we've got both the army and navy in there!"

"There are eighteen." It was Katie. She and Roger had followed Marcia to the kitchen.

"I guess I know more about these things than you do," she said as she started expertly to flip the eggs Marcia had put in the pan.

"Gee, it sure is sweet of you folks to let us come in here and get you up this way. They're a bunch of nuts. They don't mean any harm, but they're goofy just the same."

"You're not," Roger looked at her with interested appreciation. "Sometimes I'm not."

Odd Meal

ROGER carried in the huge silver tray heaped with generously made sandwiches. His father, the large and fragrant coffee pot. Lovely's friends needed no second invitation to come to the dining room.

"I could like this place," one of the boys said, taking in the large, luxurious room. "I can see it growing on me just like a wen!"

"Not you, you lush!" from a girl. "Oh Lovely! She's the one that's gone glamor-girl!"

Their capacity for food was a major marvel. They were like a pack of ravenous young hounds. Exclaiming over their food. Snatching from one another. Passing their cups for more coffee. Dropping the loaf sugar from Marcia's lovely silver container with reckless abandon.

When Marcia got up and went to the kitchen, Katie followed her.

"Don't," she said as she saw Marcia's more eggs and bacon and bring out a loaf of bread. "Don't get anything more for them. They'll eat forever, as long as you put food on the table. They don't need it. That's just the way they are. Gluttons. Pigs!"

Katie had taken both of Marcia's hands and was drawing her out of the kitchen.

CREEK LOCKS

Creek Locks, Feb. 28—Mrs. W. Williams and daughter, Dot, and friend, Mrs. A. DeCarlo and daughter, Gloria, all of Jersey City, spent the week-end with Mrs. John Coutant.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smythe of Windlake visited their mother over the week-end.

Warren Pardon of Jersey City visited with Virginia Coutant over the week-end.

Marie Lynch and Mrs. Helen

"But they seem hungry yet," Marcia said puzzled.

"They're not. They couldn't be. Not after all they've had here. They're just that way. Wolves."

Marcia allowed herself to be persuaded.

And finally the cars rolled down the Cosgrave drive to the Albany Post road as dawn was pointing its fingers over the Hudson. Lovely told Marcia and Kar they were grand sports, tops, and she loved them. She hugged Roger violently, took off the trailing velvet negligee and dropped into bed and immediately to sleep.

But Roger lay staring at the ceiling.

Emily would arrive tomorrow. Emily with her quiet ways and sweet consideration. Emily who was so restful. Emily who always said quietly: "If you want it, dear—anything you want." Self-effacing, gentle Emily.

He looked at Lovely, sleeping soundly. She was beautiful. And so young as she slept. He could wait. He could wait until some of the fierce young energy wore out. She was worth it.

In the morning he followed the maid with the breakfast tray into his mother's room.

Marcia, it was sweet of you to let that wild mob come in here and feed," he said sitting on the edge of her bed.

Marcia smiled. She was pretty even in the morning.

"I didn't mind a bit, Roger," she said. "I thought they were rather fun. Katie's a sweet little thing."

"Yes," Roger was thoughtful. Lovely was still sleeping like a tired baby.

Marcia handed him a piece of toast with orange marmalade on it. Roger ate it slowly. Merry, Marcia's Bedlington, looked wistfully from one to the other until Marcia gave her a piece of toast.

Shock From Emily

FINALLY Roger said the thing that had been on his mind: "It's going to be tough for Emily, isn't it?"

"Terribly," Marcia turned away and Roger knew her eyes had moistened. She had learned to think of Emily as her own daughter.

"You don't think it could have been an accident?" Marcia asked after a long silence.

"How could it?" Roger asked. "I've driven up there so often. The street ends and you have to drive right across a little park to reach the cliff. No one could make a mistake."

"But if their brakes—" Marcia's voice trailed into silence.

"If he'd just lifted his foot and there'd been no brakes the car would have stopped."

"I know," he walked in Marcia's pretty voice. "And their hands clasped like that. Poor Emily. I can't think why they'd do it."

"Tough for her," Roger said thoughtfully as he stroked Merry's soft fur.

"I must be kind to her. I wonder," Lovely said. "Marcia started but Roger's words came quickly."

"She'll be all right. She hasn't a jealous or mean thought in her head."

"I know, Roger, but you'll have to be careful. Women keep their love apart from the rest of life. You'll never be just a man at work or at play to Lovely. You'll always be her husband—her man. You see I know." She smiled at him. "I'm a woman, Roger."

But it wasn't as hard to meet Emily as Roger had thought it would be. She wasn't changed in the least, unless it was that suffering seemed to hang like a very thin veil over her.

Roger brought her up from the station.

Lovely had been to the kennels. Winthrop Ramsey had been showing her which dogs might make something at Madison Square Garden in February and why. Perfect coat. Excellent jaws. Swell stance. Fine dark eyes. And Lovely was fascinated.

"I like to watch him with the dogs," she said. "He has that fascinating, steeped in iniquity, look! World battered, if you see what I mean. He's probably been in every wicked spot in the world and taken something of each one away with him."

"I wouldn't be surprised," was Roger's comment for he knew Win's set of dog handlers left little of life unexplored.

And Win found Lovely's conspicuous beauty pleasant to have around while he groomed Blue Streak or Merry or Blaze. It would be nice to have her at the shows, too.

And so Lovely breezed in from the kennels just a moment before Emily came down from the South guest room which she always occupied.

"Emily!" Lovely's voice was a high cry of delight. People were a passion with her. She loved having them about. "But how sick and swell you look! Like a model or something!"

"Mostly 'or something," Lovely said. "But I am part of the great galosh wearing public now! I walk to work every morning and feel very worthy and ambitious and things like that."

"You mean you did, Emily," Marcia said, aware of a little feeling of relief at seeing the girls meet as if there had never been heartbreak between them.

"You're not going back to that doctor's office," Marcia added.

"Oh, but I am going back! I may as well tell you—there wasn't a cent left. Nothing!"

Judge McKenna Be St. Joseph's Holy Name Speaker

The Hon. John A. McKenna, county judge of Rockland county, will be the principal speaker at the annual communion breakfast at St. Joseph's Holy Name Society, to be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel on March 9.

Last year the annual breakfast was held during the Lenten season, on the second Sunday of March. This plan proved so popular that it was decided to follow it again this year. Accordingly, the members will receive communion at 8 o'clock, after which will proceed to the hotel.

The committee states that year after year, in parishes large and small throughout the state and nation, wherever Catholic men are gathered together in the Holy Name Society, has become a communion breakfast. As in the past, St. Joseph's men are expected again this year to enter enthusiastically into the spirit of the event and attend in large numbers.

Alfonso XIII Dies In Rome, Aged 54

both as ruler of Spain and as an exile. Literally born to the crown on May 17, 1886—he was the posthumous son of Alfonso XII—he was under the regency of his mother, Queen Maria Cristina until his sixteenth birthday. Then he ascended a throne restored only since his sire had taken it at the same age after years of bloody wars between Bourbons and Carlists, followed by a brief and quarrelsome republican regime.

The throne remained shaky throughout the 29 years which Alfonso occupied it. He reigned from May 17, 1902, to April 14, 1931, when he signed a manifesto in which he said that elections, held a few days previously, "made it clear that I no longer have the love of my people." Predicting that the republic would not last long, he added:

"I renounce none of my rights, for, more than my rights, they are the accumulated layers of history for which some day I shall have to render strict account."

The next day he sailed to France aboard a cruiser. His wife, Queen Victoria, and their four sons and two daughters, left by train. The family was reunited at Fontainebleau, on the outskirts of Paris, but like Alfonso's regime, disintegrated. It was the start of a series of frustrations for the ex-king.

First the husband and wife went separate ways. Then in 1933 the eldest son, Alfonso, Prince of the Asturias, crossed his father by marrying a Cuban commoner, losing his shadowy rights to the non-existent throne and becoming a front page headline in America by his subsequent divorce, second marriage and second divorce, finally to die September 6, 1938, a victim of hemophilia, dread hereditary affliction passed down by his mother from her ancestry in the House of Hesse. Death followed injuries received when an automobile driven by a night club cigarette girl crashed near Miami, Fla.

This tragedy came four years after the youngest child, Prince Gonzalo, had succumbed in August, 1934, to the same affliction, bleeding to death from minor injuries when a car driven by his sister, Infanta Beatrice, cracked up in Austria.

The eldest son's defiance of family law caused a realignment in the succession. The second son, Prince Jaime, born stone deaf, had acquired only rudimentary speech and renounced his rights in favor of his younger brother, the third son, Prince Juan. The new heir was named Prince of the Asturias when he reached his 21st birthday on June 20, 1934. He married, in April, 1935, Princess Maria Mercedes of the Two Sicilies branch of the House of Bourbon-Anjou.

Princess Beatrice, recovering from the shock of the accident which caused Gonzalo's death, married in January, 1935, Prince Alessandro Torlonia of Italy, whose mother was the former Elsie Moore of New York.

Prince Jaime, the afflicted second son, was married at Rome in March, 1935, to Emanuela de Dampierre, descendant of French nobility and granddaughter of Princess Ruspoli Poggio di Suasa, the former Josephine Curtis of New York.

Lonely Exile's Hopes Dimmed
These happenings left the exiled king with only his younger daughter, Infanta Maria Cristina, as his "home" companion. He met his estranged wife on several occasions, notably at the funeral of Prince Gonzalo and at christenings of their grandchildren, and there were frequent reports of reconciliation. But none of these eventuated, nor did the equally frequent rumors that their marriage was to be annulled. Alfonso's former position as "Most Catholic Majesty" in Spain was emphasized whenever the Vatican had occasion to deny annulment reports.

Meanwhile the ex-monarch's political position developed disappointingly. When leaving the throne he had said:

"My conscience tells me that this shunting of popular feeling (away from the monarchy) will not be for long."

Three years later a swing of the republic's electorate towards the conservative parties gave point to this prophecy but it was short-lived. Then when civil war started in Spain on July 17, 1936, with a revolt of Monarchists, rightists and military men against the left government, Alfonso and his heir, Prince Juan, moved mysteriously about Europe and were said to be preparing for a restoration of power.

Another development was peace with the Carlists. That old line of rival Spanish kings had maintained its claims to the Spanish throne for a century, but the death of Don Jaime of Bourbon, six months after Alfonso's dethronement, had removed the last active pretender of the family. Carlist adherents in Spain enlisted along with Alfonso's retainers in the 1936 insurrection. Then the Fascist regime in Italy and the Nazi government of Germany gave it active support. "Jose" Pius XI pronounced it a "just cause" and Alfonso took pains to renew his allegiance to the Vatican.

But as the insurgents drove to the outskirts of Madrid and won control of two-thirds of Spain, the monarchists in the organization fell into disfavor with General Francisco Franco, commander-in-chief. Alfonso's hopes were dashed when Franco was named "el caudillo," Spanish equivalent of "el duce" or "der Fuehrer," of the movement and then, in February, 1937, proclaimed that "the new Spain will represent a national family one, without masters or vassals, without poor or potentate."

From the start of his exile, Alfonso also had financial problems. He had been one of the richest monarchs of his time, having inherited upwards of $3,500,000 from his mother, a fortune which he increased by successful investments. An inventory by the provisional republican government, which ousted him, placed the wealth of the royal family at $8,600,000, but this included only scanty data on the king's foreign holdings, which were said to include stock in the Union Pacific railroad in the United States, the Royal Dutch Shell Petroleum Company and banks in Argentina.

Republic Defeated in Suits
The fragmentary aspect of this inventory was emphasized by valuation of Alfonso's palace at Santander at less than $7,500 and the confession of the appraisers that they could not determine the $3,500,000 inherited from his mother had been distributed.

Something of the canny shrewdness of the king was revealed when he sued for possession of securities that had been cached in scattered banks. The new republic, through the bank of Viscaya, had claimed these deposits, but the ex-king in March, 1934, got favorable court decisions in London and Rome which opened the way for him to gain possession of bonds and stocks in Milan, Paris and other cities.

In the interludes of suits, political maneuvers and family problems he turned for diversion to international society circles in France, Italy and the Riviera, and to sports, of which polo, yachting, motorizing and hunting were his favorites.

A lion hunt in the Sudan put his life in jeopardy March 15, 1934, when his party and a Sudanese patrol exchanged shots for several hours. Each side thought the other was a gang of bandits.

But facing death from bullets was no new thing for Alfonso. On the very day that he ascended the throne secret police thwarted a plot to kill him by arresting the leaders and getting confessions from them. Seven times afterwards he was the target of assassins whose bullets or bombs went wild.

The most spectacular of these experiences occurred May 31, 1906, the day of his wedding to the English princess, Victoria Eugenia Ena of Battenberg. It happened while the newlyweds, following the marriage ceremony, were driving from the ancient church of San Geronimo to the royal palace.

A powerful bomb, hidden in a bouquet, was tossed from a third story window. It struck a wire and deflected, but fell so close to the bridal equipage that one of the white horses was killed and the coach itself damaged. The terrific explosion killed 24 spectators and wounded 80 others.

A splinter hit one of the decorations on Alfonso's breast. His first act was to shield his bride. He soothed her fright and then escorted her to another carriage, crossing himself in prayer for the dead and dying scattered in the street.

That evening the king and his new queen drove, unattended and in an open car, through the streets of Madrid. The crowds cheered that display of courage until they were hoarse. The scenes were repeated the next day and the next, when Alfonso rode alone, defying enemies of the throne to do their worst.

Ten-Million-Dollar Wedding
The wedding festival was a state affair of medieval pomp but with the most elaborate modern trimmings that could be devised. It was reported to have cost $10,000,000.

Guests included the Prince of Wales, who became George V of Great Britain; Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of the German emperor; Grand Duke Michael, brother of the czar of Russia, and representatives of every other royal family of Europe, grantees of Spain and special envoys from all countries with which Spain had diplomatic relations.

When Frederick Whitridge of New York, special envoy of the United States by appointment of President Theodore Roosevelt, resided at the palace to congratulate the royal couple on their escape, the king said attempts on his life probably would continue, "but so far a merciful Providence has saved me."

The bomb thrower, Matteo Morral, was cornered in a village near Madrid. He shot and killed a policeman who tried to arrest him, then blew out his own brains.

The marriage of Alfonso and Victoria, appropriate as it was from a state viewpoint, was long considered one of the real royal love matches of Europe. They were credited with creating a simple family life within the royal palace in Madrid and the king always devoted a part of each day to the children, playing, working or studying with them and always supervising their training. The shattering of this family circle after the dethronement in 1931, always was something of a mystery.

Prince Alfonso, who died virtually alone in Florida, was born May 10, 1907. Prince Jaime came into the world June 23, 1908; Princess Beatrice, June 22, 1909; Princess Maria Cristina, December 12, 1911; Prince Juan, June 20, 1913, and Prince Gonzalo, October 24, 1914.

Cause of Action Found Missing By Judge Russel

On application to the supreme court by John F. Wadlin, attorney for Frederick J. Thiell, defendant, Justice Pierce H. Russell has signed an order dismissing the complaints of Samuel Abrams and Tillie Abrams and Ira Abrams, as infant by guardian, against Frederick J. Thiell on the grounds the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

This action was one which grew out of the crash of the Milton fire truck one Sunday afternoon near the Hepworth fruit stand between Marlborough and Milton. Mr. and Mrs. Abrams and their child were injured when their south-bound car was struck by the fire truck which went out of control as it proceeded north in charge of Chief Thiell.

Mr. and Mrs. Abrams of Brooklyn brought an action against the Milton fire district and also Chief Frederick J. Thiell to recover for injuries. Chief Thiell, who drove the truck, was indicted for criminal negligence resulting in death, following the death of Anthony Fanizzi and Clarence Alsford, two men who were riding on the truck.

Mr. Wadlin applied to the supreme court for a dismissal of the complaint of Abrams against Chief Thiell on the grounds that there was no cause of action and the matter was heard before Justice Russell, who has decided in favor of the defendant, Thiell. His order, dated February 24, dismisses the complaint as against Mr. Thiell. Flanagan & Kaercher opposed the motion.

"Now, here's a man's tea"
"I'm a young housewife operating on a budget. When I first took on the care and feeding of a husband I was green. I experimented with various brands of tea. These experiments were greeted by varying degrees of indifference by my friend husband. The day I brewed my first pot of McCormick Tea, his English-bred taste for tea perked up and took notice. 'Now, here's a man's tea,' he said. 'It has body, tang and flavor.'

Travel Movie Shown At Y Women's Club

An unusually delightful travel movie across the United States was presented Thursday afternoon before the Women's Club of the Y. W. C. A. by Mrs. Edward L. Ramer of Irving Place. The pictures were taken on a recent trip by Mrs. Ramer's father-in-law, George L. Ramer of Miami, Fla., and were shown through the courtesy of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Co. "The New World Symphony" by Dvorak, played during the showing of the movie, was furnished by Elston's Sport Shop.

The travelogue, consisting of 3,200 feet of technicolor, was one of the most interesting programs the club has had this year. The group was first taken to California where they saw pictures of the Golden Gate Exposition at San Francisco, explored the various interesting San Francisco bridges and visited several of the more noted gardens in the vicinity of California. From San Francisco the trip continued through the Sierra Nevada Mountains to the Great Red Woods and Lake Tahoe. The next scenes were in Oregon with visits to Crater Lake, the Columbia river and Bonneville Dam, the world famous rose gardens in Portland, Mount Ranier, Grand Coulee Dam and Glacier National Park. In Glacier National Park the party secured some fine wild life pictures as well as views of religious ceremonies of the Blackfeet Indians.

In Yellowstone National Park the party visited the geysers and hot springs and became acquainted with the park's wild life. The film also included shots at Grand Teton National Park, and unusual views at Niagara Falls. The travelogue concluded with a gorgeous sunset over the New York World's Fair. During the showing of the movies Mrs. Ramer explained the various places visited.

The next meeting of the club will be March 13 when Edward Huben will give a talk on "Our Catskills."

PERSON ENTERING ROOM WHERE THERE IS LONG RECEIVING LINE GIVES NAME TO PERSON AT HEAD OF LINE

Or Old Friend Is Usually Greeted by Each Hostess and Presented to the Next in Line

When entering a room where there is a receiving line of formidable length, you always give your name either to the announcer or to the person at the head of the line. In many cases, this first person repeats your name to the next one, and the next also repeats it. But only those of long and experienced practice are likely to have trained their ears and tongues well enough to do this—easily and accurately. In most circumstances, an old friend is usually greeted by each hostess and presented to the next in line. Strangers give their names if they want to be recognized. Otherwise, everyone just smiles and shakes hands and says, "Good evening," or "How do you do."

Engaged Girl's Problems

Dear Mrs. Post: My fiancé's parents live several hundred miles from here, where I live and he works. His sister is being married and his mother has just written inviting me to come home with John for the wedding. I would like to ask a few questions first before answering her letter: (1) Is it proper for me to go home with him by train? (2) If we go together, should I pay my own fare and who pays for the meals we eat on the train? (3) Should I take a present to his mother (I have never met her)? (4) Should I take a wedding present to the sister with me or should I send it before I go?

Answer: (1) You may accept his mother's invitation, certainly. (2) Ordinarily you would each pay your own fare and he would buy your meals on the train just as he does when he asks you to lunch or dine with him in a restaurant. However, since you are engaged to him, there is no impropriety in your accepting your railroad tickets from him. (3) In this case, I think it would be nicer to give her a present another time when you know her better. (4) Yes, take it, if you are going several days ahead of time, so the bride can display it with her other presents; otherwise, send it if possible.

Naipkins With Lace Cloth

Dear Mrs. Post: What kind of napkins are best to use with an all-over pattern of lace tablecloth? Answer: Handkerchief linen either with matching lace around the edge or lace hemstitched, and in either case the napkins should of course be embroidered with a fine monogram or initials. It is rather important that the linen be more or less the color of the tablecloth. That is, not to have pure white napkins with a cream lace cloth.

Teaspoons

Dear Mrs. Post: Should the teaspoon served with tea or coffee be put on the right or left of the plate when tea or coffee is served at the table with the meal?

Answer: Neither, since it belongs on the saucer. But the general rule is that spoons laid at places always go at the right. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Twenty oft-repeated questions about special problems of table service and setting are answered in Emily Post's booklet, "The Etiquette of Table Setting," which you may have by sending ten cents. Address Emily Post, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

With the recent adoption by the city health board of an amendment to the city's milk code promulgated after April 1, only pasteurized milk could be sold in Kingston, it is interesting to recall that in April, 1916, the health board was deluged with the amount of a butter fat that milk sold in the city should contain.

The state code in 1916 required a butter fat content of 3 per cent but the local health board had adopted a resolution that the butter fat be 3.5 per cent. At the April meeting the milk committee brought in a majority report that the state code be followed and the 3.5 per cent resolution rescinded. Commissioner Charles L. McBride of the milk committee submitted a minority report to the effect that the 3.5 standard be maintained.

On the vote on the majority report Mayor Palmer Canfield, Dr. E. E. Norwood and John E. Mahor voted affirmatively, while Charles L. McBride, Frank Kaufman and Mrs. M. J. Michael voted against the adoption of the report.

The resolution was declared lost.

No vote was taken on the minority report, which was ordered filed.

In April, 1916, F. Jacobson & Sons were operating a shirt factory on Field Court and it was announced that the concern planned to erect a modern three story factory building on Cornell street at Smith avenue. Plans had been prepared by Architect Myron S. Teller, and it was planned to begin building operations shortly. The growth of the business and the need of larger quarters was the reason given for the decision to erect the new plant on Cornell street.

In April, 1915, opposition to the local trolley road suddenly sprang up with the introduction of jitney buses in the city which would convey a patron to any section of the city for a jitney (five cents).

For a time the jitneys did a rushing business until so many embarked in the business that it did not pay to operate the jitney buses. The buses, as I recall it, were similar to our present day taxicabs.

WHAT IS HOMEWITHOUT A GARDEN?*Garden Clubs Campaign For Plenty of Food*National President Urges Action by Army of Amateurs

Five million home defense gardens, growing vegetables to be eaten by the owners' families, is the goal set by Hoyt Paxton, president of the Men's Garden Clubs of America for the campaign in which his organization is taking the lead.

"Europe offers tragic proof that food is as vital to defense as are weapons," said Mr. Paxton. "Every country now at war has broken down in its efforts to keep the food supply at normal. When armies are in training and industry is forced to concentrate upon munitions, the problems of food transportation may become more difficult than those of food production. Home gardens producing food F. O. B. the kitchen door, help solve both these problems."

While production of commercial vegetables was in surplus last year, a different picture is likely to be developed by next summer, warned Mr. Paxton.

Factories Drain Garden Labor

"Reports of curtailed market garden acreage are widespread," he said, "higher wages, and shorter hours in factories are draining competent labor away from the market gardens, where the work days are long and there is overtime work without overtime pay."

Vegetable seeds are much higher priced, and many are scarce. Those who take food abundance for granted are likely to have unpleasant surprises.

Each Men's Garden Club which belongs to the national organization has been asked to form a committee on defense gardens, and a national committee is being organized to coordinate their efforts. The following program has been recommended to the defense garden committees by President Paxton:

1.—To persuade every experienced amateur gardener who has a suitably cultivated garden plot to grow vegetables for family consumption.

2.—To offer your services as practical advisors to industries, clubs and municipalities, who plan to plow up vacant land for garden allotments to be cultivated in spare time by those lacking space at home.

3.—To discourage hysterical demands that established ornamental plantings be turned to vegetable growing, or that gardens be made under conditions where failure is probable.

4.—To advise that flowers be planted to border the vegetables, that the beauty of public ornamental plantings be preserved unmarred, and that defense gardens be made on the abundant supply of vacant land which is well adapted to such purpose.

"Our country is preparing to defend itself from attack," said Mr. Paxton, "and every American has been called upon to contribute to the extent of his ability to that end."

"Every home which has space in which vegetables can be grown, can make an important contribution to defense, as in the years of 1917, 1918 and 1919. In our view this help is even more needed, than it was then."

"Since 1919 home vegetable gardens have been reduced by half in number and while commercial vegetable production has increased all this increase has been concentrated in the extreme south and west, from which green vegetables are shipped across the continent to the large centers of population. Market growing near our large midwest and eastern cities has actually decreased."

"Where 93,139 cars were used in 1917 to transport fresh vegetables, excluding potatoes, to market, in 1938, 248,062 cars were necessary, plus uncounted trucks. Any interference with this high speed transportation, or with the labor supply in growing sections, will immediately reduce supplies to our chief industrial centers and mobilization camps."

"Obviously this is a most dangerous situation, from a defense point of view."

"Home gardens will turn to vegetable production by the million if attention is called to the need for their help. But there is no time to be lost. Vacant land, in favorable locations, must be allotted. Soil preparation should be begun as early as possible, and seed sown by next April, otherwise the opportunity to strengthen our food front will have been lost, and the emergency may be upon us."

Narrow Section Of 9-W Is Listed On Road Program

The last remaining two-strip roadway on route 9-W between Kingston and Newburgh in all probabilities will be eliminated this season, giving either three-lane or the newer four-lane parkway type of pavement all the way from Saugerties to Newburgh.

Construction of the new roadway is expected to start this summer. This last remaining strip of narrow pavement lies between Milton and Marlborough and is approximately four miles in length. On this route are several bad grades and dangerous curves which form a bottle-neck for traffic during the summer months when traffic is heavy and many large slow moving trucks are on the road.

Assurance of the new road depends only upon the completion of the securing of rights of way by the Rights of Way Committee of the Board of Supervisors which has been working the past few days signing agreements with owners of land along the new proposed route which lies mostly to the west of the present route, and the seeking of bids by the state.

Authorization for the work was had some time ago when the state prepared taking maps and filed them with the Board of Supervisors with a request that rights of way be secured. The committee sought to secure the rights of way but owners of property in many cases asked prices which the committee felt were exorbitant and the matter was temporarily dropped and nothing was done last year.

Committee Busy

Several days ago the committee again took up the matter of interviewing property owners and have already signed up several agreements where the asked price was considered fair and reasonable.

This work will be continued and as many parcels as can be secured by agreement as to price will be taken and in cases where no agreement can be arrived at the parcels will be taken by condemnation.

As soon as agreements are concluded with property owners with whom the committee can come to satisfactory terms, condemnation proceedings will be instituted in the remaining cases and with the commencement of condemnation proceedings the state may enter upon the properties and start work.

May Finish Soon

This morning County Attorney Roscoe V. Ellsworth said that it was believed the securing of rights of ways would be completed very shortly in those cases where owners could come to terms with the county and that condemnation proceedings would then be instituted in other cases.

Mr. Ellsworth said he saw no reason why work should not be underway early this year. Once the rights of ways are secured the state may advertise for bids and proceed with the work.

Completion of the new route will provide three or four strip cement pavement on route 9-W for the entire length of Ulster county and will eliminate one of the last remaining bottle-necks from the Catskills to the metropolitan areas.

Senator Has Grim View of Aid Bill

was smoother than butter but war was in his heart." Wheeler's address was the first of the two major speeches which he planned for the closing days of the Senate's general debate on the legislation. In view of the No. 1 role he has popularly been assigned in fight on the British aid measure, his speeches were regarded as the climax offensives of the opposition's floor battle.

Before Wheeler could take the floor, he had to wait until Senator Maloney (D-Conn.), a supporter of the bill, delivered his planned speech in behalf of passage without further delay.

As the Senate reached its eleventh day of general debate, administration leaders were arranging for longer sessions next week in hopes of expediting consideration of amendments and then final action.

Senator Connally (D-Tex.), one of the strategy board, remarked that "while you can't call all this speechmaking a filibuster, it has some of the earmarks of one."

Wheeler described the address he prepared for today as a legalistic analysis of the measure. He would follow he said with a discussion of the bill's background "and the policy followed of readying the country to accept the present war as our war."

Virtually No Checks

The bill, in his opinion, placed virtually no limitations on the President.

"There is nothing," he asserted, "to keep him from attempting secretly to dictate the war aims of the foreign governments as part of the price to be paid, and thus commit us to those war aims."

"Having failed in a domestic purge, he can inaugurate a purge on an international scale, to rid the world of rulers with whom he disagrees or who may challenge his claims to a benevolent dictatorship."

"Talk about blank checks. Could Messiah ask for more?"

Mentioning Wilkie at one point, Wheeler dubbed the 1940 G.O.P. presidential nominee "the intrepid Trojan horse of the Republican party."

"Mr. Wilkie's present advocacy of all-out aid to Britain . . . may prove to be just early campaign oratory looking toward the Democratic nomination in 1944," he suggested.

The lease-lend bill, Wheeler charged, at another time, was drafted "by nameless ghostwriters with a passion for anonymity" and their identity "remains a state secret."

Then he added: "I for one should like to know whether the agents of any foreign government, registered or unregistered, have participated in writing this bill."

The title of H.R. 1776 (an act further to promote the defense of the United States and for other purposes) is the culmination of the subversive propaganda efforts of international bankers, masquerading under the name of the committee to defend the United States by aiding the allies.

"History will record no stranger or more unaccountable marriage than 'by nameless ghostwriters with a passion for anonymity' between Wall Street and the New Deal, after their bitter estrangement of the past eight years."

Husband of Local Woman Arrives After Rough Trip

A passenger on the hurricane-tossed liner Siboney, which arrived at Jersey City Thursday from Lisbon, 60 hours late, was Vladimir Illiaschenko, whose wife is the former Miss Julia Burgevin, daughter of Mrs. Burgevin and the late George Burgevin.

Mr. Illiaschenko was in Belgium at the time it was overrun by the German army. He made his way to Lisbon and left the latter place February 14, sailing on the Siboney. One day out from port the ship entered a hurricane zone and it was not until February 19 that she moved into clearing weather, with portholes bashed in and the main galley flooded. For two days it was impossible to prepare hot meals, and of the 342 passengers, 100 were treated in the ship's hospital for minor injuries.

Captain Habel said that in his 39 years at sea he had not been on a ship which rolled so badly as did the Siboney in the savage seas, pounded by the 100-mile-an-hour whirling winds.

Mr. Illiaschenko has been in Europe for four or five years. He was in Belgrade with Mrs. Illiaschenko and their daughter when war threatened and sent his family home at that time. They have since been living at the Burgevin home here. Mrs. Burgevin said this morning that her daughter had gone to the city to meet the Siboney several days ago, at the time it normally should have arrived and she had not yet heard word from her or her husband.

Chicken Sexing Case to Be Heard Before Hasbrouck

An action of considerable concern to poultrymen of this section will be taken up for trial before Judge G. D. B. Saturday morning, when the famous chicken sexing case will be heard.

The action and for damages is being brought by S. John and is against Tok Kuroiwa and Nita Saito. There is also a second action brought against Fred McCarthy which will be tried in conjunction with the first action.

It is alleged in past years were entrusted to the plaintiff in sexing baby chicks at various poultry farms in this locality but that this year they withdrew from the plaintiff and attempted to enter into contracts with former customers of the plaintiff for that work. The plaintiff then sought a temporary injunction to restrain their actions and the matter now comes before Judge Hasbrouck for a permanent injunction and damages.

Sexing of baby chicks is a highly specialized art and is carried out principally by Japanese who seem to have a special ability for this work. Baby chicks are sorted by the workmen and the male birds are eliminated, thus allowing the sale of female chicks to customers for so called day old chickens. The Japs are so expert that the sexing firms can guarantee nearly perfect results to customers and purchasers secure some to 100 per cent pullets as a result of this sexing service.

Charles de la Vergne and Frank Martucci appear for the plaintiff in the action and David Corwin for the defendants.

No One Is Hurt

Viochich of Prattville and being driven by Caroline Viochich was damaged on the right side, following a collision about 3:45 Thursday afternoon on Albany avenue extension. Neither driver was injured. Deputy Sheriff Fredenburg and Segetken, who investigated the accident, said that it occurred when the Dafford car slowed up to make a left turn into Lawrenceville street and was sideswiped by the north bound Viochich car.

One Man Killed, Fireman Injured In Newburgh Fire

One man lost his life and a paid fireman was injured, but not critically, in a fire which destroyed the loft in the public garage on South Johnston street in Newburgh about 1:30 o'clock this morning.

William Wayman, 55, who was killed in the fire, lived alone in the loft. The fireman, Oliver Oaks, a "call man" in the Newburgh fire department, was injured.

The garage was owned by Thomas Ponsse.

According to the fire department officials Wayman had retired for the night fully clothed. He evidently awoke shortly after 1 o'clock this morning to find his bed and his clothing on fire.

There are no stairs leading to the loft and the only way one could enter or leave the loft was by means of a ladder through a trap door or opening in the floor.

Wayman, it is thought, leaped through the opening in the floor and was found lying on the cement floor of the main floor of the garage by the fire department. His clothes were still burning.

Coroner William E. Doulin pronounced death as due to shock and first and second degree burns. Wayman is survived by three adult children.

Taxicab Drivers Hope For Rain, Cold Always

If cab drivers had their way, every hour of the day would be that from 7 to 8 p. m. and, preferably, with the rain coming down by the bucketful.

Day in and day out, more people want cabs between 7 and 8 p. m. than at any other hour. That is the peak period on nearly all days of the week and in all except a few summer months, according to surveys made by the Yellow Cab company covering the last years.

But on Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. and their offspring—stay up late, and the rush hour is between 1 and 2 a. m. The hour from 2 to 3 a. m. is always heavy and frequently tops the 7 to 8 hour which, though not in first place Saturday nights, is well up among the leaders.

The night demand for cabs fluctuates. After the peak is reached at 8 p. m. there is practically always a drop for two hours, and another rise from 10 to 11 or 11 to 12 p. m. when people are emerging from theaters and other entertainment places.

On weekdays throughout the year there is a steady rise in the requests for cabs from 7 through 9 a. m., due chiefly to the number of persons taking cabs to work. After 9 a. m. there is a drop until the afternoon, when the demand again increases.

Winter is the busiest season in the cab business, and summer the dull.

Woman Injured As Cars Collide At Marlborough

Vivian Greiner of Marlborough suffered head injuries in a crash on Birdsall avenue, Marlborough, Thursday evening about 10:30 o'clock between a car operated by Marjorie Greiner and one driven by Samuel Coutant, both of Marlborough.

Miss Greiner, sister-in-law of Mrs. Greiner, was treated at the scene by Dr. Harris and then taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh where she was placed on the danger list. Today her condition was reported as not serious. She suffered a laceration and deep gash on her head and it was at first believed she had suffered a skull injury.

At the hospital it was stated she would remain at the hospital and X-rays would be taken in a day or two to determine the extent of her injuries.

The car operated by Coutant was owned by Daniel Perasso of Marlborough, and Coutant was riding alone at the time. Mrs. Greiner was accompanied by her husband and Miss Greiner and all occupants except Miss Greiner escaped injury.

Sergeant J. J. Hulse and Trooper James Benson made an investigation and found the two cars had been traveling in opposite directions and the left sides of the cars crashed as the drivers were about to pass on a grade and curve. No arrests were made.

Nazi Soldiers Are Advancing

far eastern base have been enlarged. Vital diplomatic maneuverings held the spotlight in the Balkans, too.

Britons interpreted their government's warning to Bulgaria yesterday to avoid any act which might lead to a diplomatic break as an effort to force Germany's hand and disclose whether the Nazis meant to fight in the Balkans or are merely throwing up a smokescreen to veil an attempted invasion of England.

The British minister in Bulgaria, George W. Rendel, said the "forerunners" of a German invasion of Bulgaria already were present by "thousands" and hinted at an imminent break between Britain and Bulgaria.

The British hailed yesterday's announcement that "full agreement on all points" had been reached by Britain and Turkey and said this announcement had much to do with Rendel's forceful stand toward Bulgaria.

Turkey is Britain's non-belligerent ally but her position had been questioned in some quarters since she recently signed a friendship pact with Bulgaria.

On the fighting fronts, an entire Italian division was said by the British today to have been shattered in fighting with West African gold coast forces on the Juba river in Italian Somaliland. The Greeks claimed to have inflicted heavy losses on an Italian force "trapped" by Greek fire in Albania.

Bad weather over the English channel kept both British and German air raiders at home overnight.

Steel Strike Was Main Factor in Thursday's Drop

The market turned lower Thursday, although there was some recovery in the later dealings and closing prices were at the best levels of the day. Main factor in sharp early declines was the weakness in Bethlehem Steel common, affected by the strike at the company's Lackawanna plants, emphasizing the uneasy situation, with threats of trouble in industries which have large defense contracts. Bethlehem Steel broke a couple of points at the opening, dropping to 77 1/2, but recovered to close at 79, a net loss of only 1/2 for the day. Steel issues as a group showed weakness, U. S. Steel and Republic, among the active issues, closing 1/2 and 1/4 lower respectively. Inland, in light dealings, dropped 2 1/2 points.

Volume was lower, total transactions for the day being 312,010 shares, with heaviest trading the last hour, when 100,000 shares changed hands. The close showed the Dow-Jones industrial average of 52 for the day, to 121.87. The railroads dropped 1/4, to 27.28 and utilities lost 1/4, to 19.02.

Commodities were irregular, with the general tendency downward, the index losing 21 point. Wheat partly recovered early losses of as much as 1 1/2 cents a bushel and closed off 1/2 to 3/4. Cotton futures went lower after early firmness and had net losses of six points for the day. Reflecting firmness in the raw sugar situation, raws selling at 3.15 cents a pound, domestic sugar futures made new seasonal highs.

Freight car loadings were affected by the Saturday holiday and dropped to 678,493 for the week to February 22, lowest since the week to January 4, and a more than seasonal drop.

Engineering construction awards last week totaled $19,201,000, bringing the total for the year to date, 120 per cent above 1940.

Edward O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, told the Senate agriculture committee yesterday that higher farm prices could be obtained by revising federal program of acreage control, benefit payments and loans. Sees the "little two or three hundred million dollars" they are asking for as "just a little piggy bank," considering that Congress already had voted more than fifteen billions of dollars for defense purposes. The farmers want price-fixing loans on cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco and rice.

William M. C. Martin, Jr., 34, president of the New York Stock Exchange, announced yesterday that he would resign his $48,000 a year job on his induction into the military service. Mr. Martin's draft number is 641 and he will probably be called into service about May 1. He has been placed in classification A-1.

Mack Truck, Inc., and subsidiaries, show sharply higher earnings for the past year. Net for the year ended December 31 was $1,805,821, equal to $3.02 a share, compared with net in the previous year of $682,987, or $1.14 a share.

Bullitt Declares Production Poor

President of the United States because the President, "before doing anything, had to persuade 130,000,000 people that it ought to be done, which would always take so long that it would always be too late for action to be effective."

"I argued," Bullitt went on, "that we must not judge the people of the United States by the people of the Soviet Union—that Americans were quick to grasp and analyze facts, well-educated and magnificently informed by a free press and a free radio."

"Stalin laughed."

Jones Cagers Score Important Win Over Simmons, 49-41

Shultis Tallies 16 to Pace Club; Rowe's Five Wins

Jack Purvis Helps Bees to Defeat Keystones by Scoring 14; Woodstock Trims Dead Enders

Some interesting basketball finally came out of the City League competition last night as Jones, Jones and Woodstock scored impressive victories. Jones defeated a tough Simmons club by 49 to 41 in an important league tilt.

Jess Shultis was the big gun again in the locals' scoring attack. Shultis dropped in 16 points and Johnny Gidley, another scoring threat of the club, dumped in 11.

Jones led at half time by 26 to 17 but it was not anybody's ball game. Ribenberg, DuBois and Beers were the point-getters for the defeated Saugerties cagers.

By winning last night the Jones continued to trample over all opposition in the circuit without a defeat. But it was a tough fight all the way. In the final period Simmons made one last effort to get the win with a belated drive. Then Shultis came through with two spectacular set shots to win the game for the Jones.

Rowe's cagers scored a 33 to 29 victory over Keystones in another game all the way. At half-time it was 15 to 12 for the Bees. Jack Purvis scored 14 for the winners. A Nussbaum gave the losers a heavier scoring power was on hand by dumping in 10.

The final contest saw Woodstock turn back the Dead Enders by 27 to 16. Danno and Chadwick were the pace setters with eight apiece. Rhoderian led six for the losers. Woodstock led at the end of the first two periods of play by 19 to 7.

Keglers Score Two Records in Major

American-Italian Pinner Get 3095 Series

The American-Italian Keglers set up two new records last night in the Central Major League despite a blind score. A 1123 single and a 3095 series were bowled by the upturn representatives.

Previous records held by the Joneses and Kendalls went by the wayside as the team came through with four men over the 600 mark. Johnny Ferraro led with a 683 triple. His best singles were 230 and 242. Vince Smedes, and up and coming bowler hit the maples for 650 with singles of 236 and 226. Poke Myers and Jack Martin also hit the 600 mark. With the bowlers in high form last night the American-Italian team took three games from Empire.

Human Resources Held Paramount As Defense Move

In a statement, entitled "Strengthening Our Nation from Within," issued today to members and contributors, the Ulster county Maternal Health Association in cooperation with the National League for Planned Parenthood urged the "mobilization of the nation's human resources" as an important step in strengthening national defense.

"Mobilization of our resources is vital to the future of the United States," the statement reads, "but if this mobilization includes only the military and economic resources of the nation, it will fail. In the final analysis mobilization of human resources is of first importance. Every effort, therefore must be made to strengthen that physical, spiritual and mental well-being which makes for a united people, prepared to defend its way of life."

Pointing to the fact that, at the present time, in the United States more than half of the babies born each year are born to families with incomes of less than $1,000 a year, the statement continued, "the unbalanced growth of the population of the United States has long been a cause for concern; the majority of our children are born to the families which are least able to provide the necessities of wholesome living."

As we strive to strengthen our nation from within, the importance of correcting this trend becomes paramount; it will be corrected if size of family is made subject to voluntary control by the parents themselves.

"Today in the United States," the statement reads, "the great majority of citizens insist on the need for vast improvements in social and economic life in order that we may make democracy work within our own borders. Such improvements are a component part of national defense itself. Therefore, as a basic measure of public health and social welfare, the program of planned parenthood should now be intensified and included in all health programs so that its full benefits may reach those strata of our population which are physically and economically unfit to carry further burdens."

Locally this is being carried out at the Maternal Health Center at 562 Broadway which has been open a year in Kingston. During this time, about 100 mothers have attended the center. Each mother has been given a medical examination which helps to reveal health conditions which can be corrected by prompt attention. Many mothers have been found to be in need of medical or surgical care and were referred to their doctor for treatment.

Reports from other sections of the country reveal that public health officials are finding the work of such centers a valuable aid to their community health. The local center is open every Friday morning.

Pippel Plans Truck Garden as Project

'Rebel' of Matanuska Says Farming Will Prosper

Anchorage, Alaska, Feb. 28 (AP)—The one-time prosperous "rebel" of the government sponsored Matanuska colony came back today to compete against his former neighbors.

Walter Pippel said he would establish a truck farm six miles from his booming air base city. He came north by boat after leaving an Amery, Wis., farm.

He went to Amery from Matanuska in 1939 after his two-year revolt against the court-supported ruling that he could sell produce only through the colony cooperative.

Pippel indicated he had the ground selected for his new venture, but did not disclose whether he would obtain it by purchase or file on a homestead. It takes some scratching to even find homestead sites in this vicinity nowadays. The war department has put most of it into military reserves.

The 42-year-old farmer, who came to Matanuska as a Minnesota relief client in 1935, was one of the most prosperous of the colony, gleaming an estimated $5,000 annually from his acres. He refused to join the cooperative.

He speaks contemptuously of his erstwhile neighbors, a few of whom are facing government ouster proceedings for non-payment of obligations.

"I'm not worried about competition from Matanuska," he declared. "There won't be any. They aren't in the business. There aren't any farmers in Matanuska."
